For many people, worship is something we do on a Sunday, but for many, there are times when Sunday is not practical, maybe for work, time away, time spent with family.....

For others, people would like to worship beyond Sundays, and would find midweek worship helpful in their spiritual journey.

If that is you, then why not join us on a Thursday morning at 10am in the choir vestry where we do share Holy Communion, as well as fellowship: tea/coffee after.

Some people worry that midweek worship is only for the "super-spiritual" and might feel embarrassed joining our group. Nothing is further from the truth – everyone is welcome – just come to the hall door, ring the bell and someone will let you in! We would love to see you!!!

And to mention also – we do offer people prayer for healing at all of our services, but for some people Thursday morning is a time when they feel most comfortable saying "I would like to be prayed for." If you want special prayer – then why not come along.....

And to mention also – sometimes people from other churches join us on a Thursday. We NEVER try to get people to leave their church to join ours, but if you know anyone from any church who would like worship midweek then invite them along....

Why did the physics teacher break up with the biology teacher?
There was no chemistry!

Just came home from a training session. Two hours on the treadmill did me really good. If only I could somehow stop the constant beeping and the irritated comments of the cashier.....
